ISO 45003 – A NEW STANDARD FOR IMPROVING MENTAL HEALTH IN THE WORKPLACE

The COVID-19 pandemic, among other things, has been a catalyst for understanding mental health and the ways we manage it.

It became clear that formal frameworks to help organisations support the mental wellbeing of their workforce are needed.

We applaud the development of ISO 45003, the newest global standard for safety in the workplace, which will help workplaces recognise hazards that could affect their workers' psychological wellbeing.

Here at Safety Mate, we believe a healthy workplace is one where psychological health is prioritised along with physical safety. So, we're donating $1 from every pair sold of our new Black Dog Safety Glove to the Black Dog Institute to support the important work they do for mental health and wellbeing.

Black Dog gloves are available through your local PPE supplier. Contact us for more information and trial samples.
